

ENDED LIFE WITH DYNAMITE

Shaw, However, First Shot and Badly Wounded His Wife at West Pelham

West Pelham, Mass., Oct. 1.—George C. Shaw, a wealthy farmer, shot his wife, Jennie E. Shaw, probably fatally here today and then blew himself to pieces with dynamite which he placed in a stump and sat down. Mrs. Shaw had come from Hartford, Conn., to place flowers on her son's grave.

Shaw, who was about 50 years old, had not seen his wife since January, 1911, when she left him, until she drove past him in a carriage near his home today. She was accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. H. W. Griffin of Chicopee, and Mrs. William Barnes of Springfield. All carried flowers which were to be placed on the grave in the West Pelham cemetery, Shaw followed them. In the roadway of John Page, a caretaker of the cemetery, he began firing at his wife with a revolver as she sat in her carriage. At the same time he used abusive language, according to the other woman.

The horse ran away and the three women were thrown out. Shaw ran up to his wife as she lay on the ground and pounded her over the head with his fists and the revolver until she was insensible. Then he crossed the fields to his home, a mile and a half away. When search was made for him a little later, a strong smell of dynamite was noticed and in an open lot at the rear bits of his body were found scattered about.

Investigation showed that Shaw had procured a quantity of dynamite at a sawmill behind his house and blown himself to pieces. An examination of Mrs. Shaw revealed six bullet wounds in her body. Her cheek bone had been crushed in and her left arm broken, and there were two deep cuts in her forehead. Some time after the shooting Mrs. Shaw recovered consciousness and asked if her assailant had been arrested. The physician held out little hope for her recovery.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Griffin were not seriously hurt by the fall from the carriage. Shaw was a successful farmer. His wife was five years his junior. The couple had two sons and three daughters. Nearly two years ago Mrs. Shaw suddenly left her home and efforts of her husband to find her were unavailing. The cause of their separation was not made public.

Shaw is said to have shown signs of eccentricity for some time, and one of these was discovered after his death. Within a short distance of the spot where he exploded the dynamite was a cross of white pine sticks. Around it Shaw had wound his red handkerchief, while his knife was lying on the top and his revolver at the bottom.

George R. Palfrey of Raynes avenue has closed his summer home at an open lot at the rear bits of his body were found scattered about.

NO NEW JURORS WERE CHOSEN

Hard Time Trying to Fill the Panel for the Salem, Mass., Trial

Salem, Mass., Oct. 1.—The venire of 350 takersmen, drawn-up possible jurors for the trial of Joseph J. Ettor, Arturo Giovannitti and Joseph Curcio on charges of being concerned in the death of Anna Lopizzo at Lawrence last January, was nearly exhausted tonight at the close of the second day of the trial. Judge Quinn is expected to order a new panel of equal size to be summoned tomorrow. One hundred and twenty-nine men were examined by the court today, but not one found his way to the jury box, so two jury-men chosen yesterday have no companions thus far.

Judge Quinn found that nearly all the takersmen who came before him already had formed an opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the defendants, or were so opposed to the death penalty that they declared that they could not conscientiously convict a man of a crime which might result in his execution. Twice during the day the court addressed the takersmen as to their duty and urged upon them to consider carefully before answering his questions.

A dozen or more of the venire were passed by the court but were quickly challenged either by the prosecution or the defense. Court officers do not look for much progress in filling the jury box until the 182 peremptory challenges allowed, sixty on either side, have been made use of. Thus far the prosecution has challenged twenty-five men and the three defendants, jointly, twenty-four.

A pathetic scene was enacted tonight as the prisoners were being taken to the jail. During the afternoon an Italian woman, with a shawl over her head and a baby in her arms, had been standing outside the court house in the rain. Just before adjournment of the court she was the wife of Curcio and took her into the building. As her husband was being led away to the jail the deputy sheriff to whom he was handcuffed stopped long enough for the man and woman to embrace. The prisoner was given a brief opportunity to look at the child, which was born since he has been in custody and which he had seen but once or twice, and then only for a few minutes.

William D. Haywood came to Salem during the late afternoon hoping to be permitted to attend the trial of his fellow leaders in the Industrial Workers of the World. He was advised he would not be admitted and did not appear at the court house. All spectators were barred today.

Several letters and telegrams of a threatening nature reached officials of the court during the day. District Attorney Attwell, who is trying the case for the government, received a telegram during the recess in which a march on the court house was threatened if the defendants were not freed. City Marshal Patrick H. Lehan had two letters of similar import. Judge Quinn received some letters containing advice on how to conduct the case.

The crowd of curious ones about the court house today was not as large as yesterday, although at the noon hour, when the prisoners were taken to lunch, it was swelled to gaudy proportions and there was lusty cheering.

VETERAN BUILDER PASSES AWAY

George A. Jackson Had Many Narrow Escapes

George A. Jackson, the veteran carpenter and builder died at his home on Dearborn street shortly after 4 o'clock this Wednesday morning.

He was born in this city March 2, 1835, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson. In the homestead where he now lives. When 16 years old he entered the shipyard of George Raynes on Christian shore and learned the trade of a ship joiner, which he followed up to the decline of ship-building on the Piscataqua river.

During his long active career he has had several narrow escapes from serious accidents. While at work at Thomas E. Call & Sons' lumber yard, about 20 years ago, the staging on which he and several men were working collapsed, and threw the men into the river. The men got out and Mr. Jackson being missed, they found him head down in the water, his overalls having caught on a spike and held him in that position.

In October, 1906, while at work shingling a building on Washington street he fell to the ground, a distance of 35 feet. No bones were broken, but he received such a general shaking up that he was forced to remain indoors for some time.

Two years later he was struck by an electric car, hurled about 15 feet, but strange to say escaped serious injury.

For 45 years he was a member of the Portsmouth fire department. When 16 he joined the Franklin band and when it was replaced by Piscataqua 4, he became a member of that company. He was afterward for two years a member of the Gov. Langdon 3, and then joined the Garibaldi hook and ladder company, holding all of the offices to foreman.

He was elected a member of the board of engineers in 1884, and served for 10 years under Chief Engineers Morden and Sullivan.

In politics he was up to within a few years a staunch democrat, but for the past four years has not taken any active part. He served as a member of the board of aldermen and was for several years a valued member of the assessors of taxes.

In 1872, while a member of the fire department, he was one of the detail of men selected by Mayor Thomas E. O'Malley to go from this city to assist in fighting the big fire in Boston, and assisted in the saving of the Old South church and other property in that section.

He is a charter member of Oak castle, Knights of the Golden Eagle. He married Miss Margaret Hilliard of Newcastle who died some years ago. As the result of the union six daughters and one son were born, three of whom are living. Mrs. Edmund F. Furbish, Mrs. George W. Hershey and Mrs. Charles B. Remick, residents of this city.

BOARD OF INSTRUCTION APPOINT TRUANT OFFICER

Board Arrange for Changes in Farragut School--Large Registration of Pupils.

A meeting of the Board of Instruction of electric lights in two rooms, and it was so voted.

The same committee reported on the over crowded condition of the first and second grades of the Franklin school, one teacher having 46 pupils. They recommended that the room be divided by a partition and that an assistant teacher be employed. This led to a discussion of the old question of a merger of the Spaulding and Franklin schools, or a R. D. McDonough for the position, division of the pupils and the Superintendent.

The committee stated that under the state law a truant officer must be appointed, and notice had been received from the State Superintendent that unless the Board appointed one, it may be possible to transfer some of the Franklin school scholars to the Spaulding.

Mr. McDonough was then unanimously elected to the position for one year.

There was the usual number of bills and these were ordered paid. In connection with the bills Mr. McDonough for the committee on purchase reported that the last of the coal would be delivered within a week and that the committee had saved the city $235, over the bids of the local dealers. The committee were authorized to approve the bill and pay for the coal as soon as it was all delivered.

Mr. Gooding, chairman of the first District, asked that the committee be authorized to make certain repairs in the Farragut school building, the cutting of two new doors and installation of electric lights in two rooms, and it was so voted.

The monthly report of Superintendent Pringle was read and it showed the registration of 1771 scholars, an increase over last year. Mr. Pringle stated that there had been 187 new scholars enter in the kindergarten and first grade and 31 reported that the last of the coal would be delivered within a week and that the committee had saved the city $235, over the bids of the local dealers. The committee were authorized to approve the bill and pay for the coal as soon as it was all delivered.

DANGEROUS COMPETITION.

Competition With Japan Must Become a Menace to Our Cotton Industry if the Tariff is Reduced.

By F. G. R. Gordon.

Hitherto Europe has been our chief competitor in cotton goods. But from now on we will have to face competition from the textile mills of Japan. The average citizen has not realized that Japan is rapidly forging to the front as a producer of textile products. It will surprise a great many people, and our textile workers as much as any, to know that Japan is now using as much raw cotton in her mills as the countries of Austria-Hungary, Belgium and Switzerland combined.

Last year Japan's cotton mills consumed 1,000,000 bales of raw cotton, most of which was imported from the United States. Twenty years ago Japan was not known as a cotton textile nation; 10 years ago she was not known as an exporter of cotton goods. Last year she exported $22,552,768 worth of cotton yarn alone. This places her in third place among the nations in the extent of her exports of yarn. Japan is also an extensive exporter of knit goods. The report of Consul General Michael at Calcutta, India, for 1908, shows that the exports of knit goods from Japan to India alone increased from $26,400 in 1902-3 to $1,279,743 in 1907-8. Because of this large increase some of the Indian mills had to close a part of the year; they could not compete with the more efficient labor of the Japanese.

This shows what Japan could do in this country if our tariff wall was removed or the duties reduced. Moreover, it is a fact that it is only a question of time before we must meet this Japanese competition, even if we have been quick to adopt automatic looms do not reduce the tariff on cotton and other up-to-date machinery.

It is easy to imagine that a nation wages in the cotton factories of this land Japan, which jumped from the 18th to the 20th century, is not doing the entire wage paid to the Japanese much in producing cotton cloth and cotton factory workers. Raw cotton yarn but a greater mistake was never does not cost any more in Japan than made. The great Kamaguchi Cotton Spinning Co., of Tokio, own and operate 17 mills, with nearly 400,000 spindles, giving employment to over 3,500 hands. This company works their help 10-12 hours per day. Most of the cotton mills of Japan, however work their hands 11 hours a day, and what is of vast importance to us is the fact that these mills run 22 hours a day, with two shifts of help. There are no labor laws in Japan.

Note how the cotton looms in Japanese cotton mills have increased:

Years	No. looms
1905	6,443
1906	9,136
1907	9,626
1908	10,379
1909	12,176

At present there are nearly 16,000 looms in operation, and mark you these looms run 22 hours per day. This means that the loom capacity of the cotton mills of Japan are equal to that of nearly 50,000 looms in America, and these figures do not indicate the thousands of hand looms operated in Japanese homes. For the year ending June 30, 1911, Japan exported 116,244,000 pounds of cotton yarn and 107,000,000 yards of cotton piece goods. Japan practically controls the trade of Manchuria and is a big factor in India.

Japan has a most efficient, intelligent and abundant class of labor, but poorly paid. The wages of men average for 11 hours' work 22 cents a day, or 2 cents an hour; wages for women average 14 cents a day, and that of children average 7 to 8 cents a day. This makes an average for all the cotton mill help of that country of just 14 cents a day of 11 hours. Think of that fact, you cotton mill workers of New England and the Southern States. Remember, too, that Japanese manufacturers have been quick to adopt automatic looms and other up-to-date machinery.

In 10 years the increase in the wages in the cotton factories of this land Japan, which jumped from the 18th to the 20th century, is not doing the entire wage paid to the Japanese much in producing cotton cloth and cotton factory workers. Raw cotton yarn but a greater mistake was never does not cost any more in Japan than

Captain Pendleton of Princeton, One of Best Ground Gainers of Season

Princeton, N. J., Oct. 2.—Princeton and a goal from the field, made this season. According to the Princeton Tiger eleven is further advanced than any other of the eastern teams and in their opinion should repeat last year's performances and win the football championship. Princeton opened its football season with an easy victory over Stevens Institute, wading through the Hoboken eleven for a total of nine touchdowns which, supplemented by eight goals in Manchester, N. H. Japanese export trade in cotton goods and yarns has been built up rapidly by a clever system of Government subsidies. The industry needs no tariff wall, but here is a government so progressive as to tax its people to subsidize an industry.

There are three great steamship lines that now ply the Pacific flying the flag of Japan. All of these lines are subsidized and have advantageous mail contracts besides. The pay of the Japanese sailors is very low, about as much for a week as we pay our men for one day, and therefore freight rates are very low. It would cost the owners of the textile mills of Japan very little to lay down cotton or other Pacific Coast cities.

Now, this is not a question of theory that we have to face in the near future. It is a question of fact; it is a question whether we want to face the open competition of one of the most skillful and efficient class of low wage cotton mill workers in the world. Do the textile workers of this country dare to face this army of 14-cent labor?

How long would it be if the Democratic tariff programme as applied to the cotton goods tariff was enacted into law, before Japan would be shipping her cotton cloth and yarn to the Pacific Coast cities? Could we stand such competition? The Indian mills are not able to meet this competition so how could we? Japanese cotton manufacturers are found all over the Far East and this trade is enormous. With wages in our cotton mills averaging not less than $265 a year, we must maintain our present tariff on cotton goods, or lose a large trade to such countries as Japan.

A vote for the Democratic tariff policy is a vote to invite competition will add materially to the size of the world. Every yard of cloth or every pound of yarn brought into this country means just that much less to be made here. If our textile workers once understand just what Japanese competition would mean to them there will be no danger of any but tried and true protectionists being elected to office from cotton manufacturing states.

COAL PRICES GO UP AGAIN

Advance of Fifty Cents a Ton in Most Places in Greater Boston, Except Wakefield, Where It is $1.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—The prices on all grades of anthracite coal were advanced today. In Boston and most of the suburban cities and towns the advance was fifty cents a ton, but in Wakefield the jump in some grades was $1, which caused many unkind remarks to be made by customers. Wakefield people who have not filled their bins were particularly disturbed because when the last previous increase came (the regular fall price ascension) in the latter part of August, they were treated to a fifty-cent advance when surrounding places had to stand only half as much. Now, again, they find that their prices have gone up twice as high as the others, so that now residents of the town will have to pay seventy-five cents a ton more for all coal which they may buy this fall and winter, unless there comes a reduction.

It might appear unusual to talk of a cut later, but there is such a prospect, according to the larger local dealers, that there is more prospect that when the supply catches up the prices will drop. For some weeks Boston has been getting more coal than at the same time last year, and it is hoped that the local deficiency will be made up. The worst feature of the situation from the viewpoint of some of the smaller dealers is that they buy from but one producing concern as a rule and now, with only the Reading, Ontario & Western and Lehigh & Wilkes Barre companies ending coal here, those who used to buy some of the other shippers are left on the shelf and cannot get a supply to sell. These fellows are in most instances buying of middlemen who are speculating and who obtain fancy prices.

Wakefield residents now must pay $10 a ton for egg, stove and nut coal. Furnace has gone up from $8.50 to $9.50 and pea coal from $7.75 to $8.50 a ton.

The large dealers say that if people will stop buying an all-winter supply and let them catch up they will be able to get the situation in hand again and reduce prices.

MERCANTILE MARINE MAY MAKE VESSELS AMERICAN

Reported Transfer of Steamers of Combine to United States Registry Comes With Discussion of Ismay's Retirement.

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The approaching retirement is under consideration of J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, who was rescued from the Titanic. According to a well-informed shipping authority negotiations are in progress for the withdrawal of Mr. Ismay and the transfer of all the boats belonging to the combine to the American register. Philip A. S. Franglin, the vice president of the concern, is mentioned as successor to Mr. Ismay.

The International Mercantile Marine Company besides building three more steamers of the same size as the Olympic for the transatlantic service intends to construct a fleet for service through the Panama Canal. It is stated that Mr. Ismay has been asked to take the chairmanship of an English railway company.

WOULD DISCHARGE INSTEAD OF IMPRISON MEN

Believing that with all our boasted advance in the handling of enlisted men in the navy we are still making a fetish of the sanctity of the enlistment contract, Capt. Marbury Johnson, U. S. N., would like to see the old regime of the Coast Survey and Fish Commission introduced into the navy as far as the immediate discharge of delinquents is concerned. Twenty-five years ago in the Coast Survey the commanding officers of vessels could discharge a man whenever they saw fit; if a man misbehaved he was paid off given his bag and hammock and put on the beach at once. This resulted in a better discipline and more contented and happy crews than he has ever seen on a man of war. Instead of this liberty of discharge making a tyrant out of the Captain he scarcely ever had to exercise the power because the men knew what would happen to them for any serious lapse. In 1889, Captain, then Lieutenant Johnson was on the Fish Commission steamer Albatross. There was no brig on the ship and so many men were drunk and disorderly that the Captain of the ship was at his wits' end. Finally Lieut. Johnson suggested the Coast Survey method of instant discharge. The Captain demurred at first, saying he could not keep a crew, but finally consented. The men were informed of the Captain's decision to make instant discharge follow infraction of the rules. The first man to be found derelict was the chief quartermaster, who was absent overtime. He had charge of all the sounding machines and was the expert splicer of sounding wire. The crew naturally came to regard him as indispensable and huddled as they looked forward to the Captain's dilemma. When the man's six hours were up, his discharge was made out, and when he returned twenty-four hours overtime he was the most astonished man on the Pacific coast when he was given fifteen minutes to pack up and get over the side. That ended all misconduct on the Albatross. During the rest of Captain Johnson's stay on the ship as executive officer not another man had to be discharged. On a Coast Survey ship with a crew of twenty-five or thirty men the discharge of one man made a hole in the crew as the discharge of thirty or forty men would be on a modern battleship.

The doing away with frons, Captain Johnson deems an advance, but the establishment of the deck courts he says was a distinct step backward. They tempt too many Captains to shirk their duty and turn it over to the deck court officer, and besides their sole function in actual practice is to fine an offender and take away his pay. This is the most fertile cause of dissatisfaction in the navy, Captain Johnson says. He does not question the right of the Government to break its contract, he merely doubts the expediency of it. The old argument that if you discharge a man for misbehaving, these that want to get out will misconduct themselves for the purpose of getting their discharge does not impress him. Let them have their discharge then says Captain Johnson. Such men are better out of the navy than in it, for they work upon the weaker natures on the ship for their moral undoing. Captain Johnson would discharge every man for his first serious offense. If a good man gave a plausible excuse he might be given another trial, but in circumstances would he give him a deck court or summary court martial and fine. A fine only makes him think that he has expiated his fault and that he has earned the privilege of repeating it.

Just as soon as the men of the navy find that all liberty breaking and serious infraction of discipline will be punished by immediate discharge just as soon will these derelictions stop. Since the navy department has authorized the discharge as undesirable of one percent of the crew each quarter, he has made it a practice to ask men at the mast whose records were bad if they wished to be discharged. Captain Johnson explains in the September proceedings of the Naval Institute, and in seven months he has had only one affirmative answer. Among the results immediately to be expected from the plan proposed he says desertion would cease to exist and the military prisons at Portsmouth, Boston and other places would have to be closed for want of occupants, the officers and men now stationed there thus becoming available for other duty. The deck court officer and the members of the permanent summary court would find more time to devote to their regular duties and the military part of the office of the J. A. G. would have a little work that three fourths of the officers on duty there could be utilized elsewhere. There is only one fly in this beautiful pot of ointment, Captain Johnson frankly admits that this is that the department would be deluged by requests of congressmen to reinstate their constituents. "We seek to make it hard for a man to quit the navy. If we made it easy to get rid of those who misbehaved, the department would be in a position to turn around and raise the physical and educational qualifications of the new men enlisted."—Naval Register.

HEAVY HAIL STORM.

A heavy hail storm struck this city on Tuesday afternoon, and for a short time there was a chance to throw snow balls.

There was a shower shortly after two o'clock, with a heavy fall of rain. Shortly after five another shower came up and this was accompanied by the hail.

MAY TRANSFER TO AMERICAN REGISTER

LONDON, Oct. 1.—The approaching retirement of J. Bruce Ismay, president of the International Mercantile Marine Company, who was rescued from the Titanic, is under consideration. According to a well-informed shipping authority, negotiations are in progress for the withdrawal of Mr. Ismay and the transfer of all the steamships belonging to the combination to the American register.

Philip A. S. Franklin, the vice president of the concern, is mentioned as successor to Mr. Ismay.

McNAMARA'S TRIAL.

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 1.—Stationed within a rail in the small court room where they occupied almost half the space, the fifty-one defendants charged with complicity in the McNamara "dynamite plot" were placed on trial before Federal Judge Albert B. Anderson today. Judge Anderson at 9:45 a. m. ordered called "consolidated case No. 3, the United States vs. Frank M. Ryan, et al."

At the outset, Orrie E. McManigal pleaded guilty. Eugene A. Clancy and Olaf A. Tvetimoe of San Francisco pleaded not guilty. All the other defendants at their arraignment last March had pleaded not guilty. Daniel J. Brophy, Brooklyn, N. Y., a former executive board member of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Workers, was reported unable to appear on account of a broken leg. This left fifty men to be tried. A motion to set aside the order consolidating the cases, made on behalf of the defendants, was sustained.

This separated the various indictments but left the defendants to be tried together. McManigal, aged about forty years, short, chubby and of florid complexion, entered the court room grinning. His eyes twinkled keenly as he glanced at the other defendants, but not a sign of recognition other than McManigal's inscrutable grin, passed between them.

"Orrie E. McManigal, do you plead guilty or not guilty to the charges against you?" asked Judge Anderson. McManigal rubbed the back of his hand across his chin and grinned again.

"I plead guilty, your honor," he said.

On motion of the Government the cases against J. W. Ryan, Peoria, Ill., Andrew J. Kavanaugh, Springfield, Ill., and Patrick H. Ryan, Chicago, were dismissed. The Government announced it had no evidence against them to warrant their trial. All of the men had been identified with the Iron Workers' union.

McManigal's plea qualified him as a witness for the Government, for which purpose he had been imprisoned for eighteen months. But it occasioned no surprise, for he already had confessed to his operations as a member of the McNamara "dynamite crew"; to having carried nitroglycerin and dynamite in a suit case from State on passenger trains and to having blown up the Llewellyn Iron Works at Los Angeles on Dec. 25, 1910, for complicity in which John J. McNamara was sentenced to fifteen years imprisonment. McManigal, the "J. W. McGraw" of the Pacific Coast, has been in custody ever since his arrest with James B. McNamara in a hotel in Detroit on April 12, 1911.

"We ask for a separate trial for each of the defendants," announced Attorney Hovey.

"Overruled," said the Court. Another motion by District Attorney Miller for a reconsideration of the cases was sustained, with the understanding that the Government select a definite number of courts which were to stand, dismissing all the other counts. Mr. Miller said the Government would elect to try the defendants each on these counts: Five counts charging conspiracy, fifty counts charging direct violation.

The work of selecting a jury then began.

ENOS REPORTED SUNK.

Telegram to T Wharf Says Fishing Vessel Went Ashore Off Maine—Crew Safe.

BOSTON, Oct. 1.—A telegram reached T Wharf this morning saying that the fishing vessel Catherine D. Enos, which usually sells her fares here, though officially she hails from Gloucester, went ashore on Isle au Haut, on the Maine coast, last night. At high water only the tip of her mainmast was above water. The skipper and crew were taken off in safety. The vessel was one of the smaller ones of the local fleet, was built in 1894 for Capt. Antonio Enos and was equipped with a gasoline engine.

AN ENTIRE TRAIN WRECKED AND BURNED

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Oct. 1.—A Louisville & Nashville express train, southbound, was wrecked near Elk-mount, Ala., early today, and, according to reports received here, the entire train was burned. First reports said 10 passengers had been hurt and a trainman killed, but more alarming rumors followed. Better trains, carrying doctors, are on their way to the wreck.

PAVING JOB COMPLETED.

The paving job on Islington street, as already stated, is finished and will be accepted by the city. The job is complete as far as the contractors are concerned, as the sidewalk work and the approach from the side streets is to be taken care of by the city, as it is not a part of the contract. The contractors must, however, make a few changes on the Richards avenue touring the mountains by automobile job.

Something of a Boss.

For a candidate who is daily denouncing political leadership as bossism Governor Woodrow Wilson manages to get in considerable fine work as a political boss himself.

Who was it that lauded that unique specimen of a statesman known as Martine in the United States senate? Ans.: Woodrow Wilson. Who was it that in emphatic terms gave the New Jersey democrats to understand that under no circumstances should that able and experienced democrat, James Smith, Jr., receive their votes in the primary, but he would furnish them another man to vote for such as he is and told them to vote for him? Ans.: Woodrow Wilson. Who has been warning the democrats of the Saratoga convention that they must not think of nominating Governor Dix? Ans.: Woodrow Wilson.

Colonel Roosevelt, of course, can beat any living man in the art of humbugging the people sometime before election day, but Woodrow Wilson imitates him fairly well in one line and that is giving grandstand performances of pretending to furnish "unbossed conventions." Well, Woodrow, what of it?

Wear Them as Long as You Like.

Speaking of straw hats, the Christian Science Monitor has the right idea on the lid question. We quote from a recent item the following:

"A straw hat would be just as comfortable, were it not for the edict of style, in October and November, often until late in December, as in May, June, July and August; but because fashion says that straw hats must not be worn after Sept. 30 under any circumstances, millions of perfectly good straw hats are thrown aside and new hats purchased prematurely to take their place. A really economical people would not only tolerate but encourage the wearing of a straw hat until it was worn out, or until it could no longer be held on by gravitation and pressure. But custom has no regard for economy. And in a nation of objectors against the high cost of living there is no sighing over the annual destruction of anywhere from $12,500,000 to $50,000,000 worth of men's headwear."

Will Be Warm Enough Later.

Up to date the presidential campaign appears to have all the attention of the leaders of the three parties. The local campaign so far is a side show.

Men With Courage.

More than one Portsmouth man has ignored fashion and sticks to his straw hat. This man should be patted on the back.

Overtime Work.

With two campaigns at hand, the local politicians are liable to be working overtime.

The Philadelphia Ledger tersely remarks that the business of government in this country has been the least efficiently managed, but it is indisputable that the public service is increasing in efficiency in every department. The president's effort looking to the preparation of a budget of government expenditures and revenues is directly in line with this progressive movement, and is one telling answer to those who misrepresent him as a reactionary.

The season of secret-order activity is in full swing once more; and while the "jiner" and the late returning husband always will be objects of newspaper wit the fact is that our myriad "lodges" do a great amount of direct good and are even more to be commended for their indirect influence in promoting the spirit of equal fellowship and fraternal helpfulness.—Concord Monitor.

The Galveston News remarks that after Texas gets through selecting a new series of school text books a careful census of the material will show that they have nothing in hand that is superior to the blue-back spelling book and Harvey's grammar of thirty years ago.

The worst case of brain storm that has come to our attention for a long time is that of William Jennings Bryan when he claims that Wilson will carry every state. Col. Bryan was very hopeful when he was himself the candidate, but now he simply outdoes all previous attempts as a political prophet.

The playgrounds now have a lonesome aspect.

The Costly Conquest of the Air.

Humanity will be disposed to pause in the presence of Saturday's further sacrifice of lives to the problem of air navigation. This loss of life is becoming fearful in its apparently certain regularity. It makes up a record of six for the United States army; a record for the world of seventeen in this month alone; a record of 194 since mechanical aviation began. The record of death in the mastery of steam for water and rail transportation was relatively small as compared with this havoc persistently played upon the limited ranks of the aviators.

But if we should cry halt, would it be heeded? The race has never yet retreated from any quest of knowledge of the earth, or from any course toward greater mastery of physical forces. It has been held back by ignorance and helplessness. It has never halted from fear of the cost to individual lives. The impelling force is in the blood. It is a divine attribute of man. It will compel persistence in the conquest of the air.

But the common voice will and should demand greater caution in aerial experiment. To the lack of due care, to the desire for spectacular performance, in detection of crowds of spectators, is due much of this loss of life which now almost daily shocks the world.—New York World.

The New York World says the statistics of infant mortality submitted to the hygienic congress have a truly appalling aspect. Though 55,000,000 babies are born into the world annually, 45,000,000 of them die before they are a year old, a number three times as great as the population of New York city, and all of them the victims of congenital disease, neglect or parental ignorance and sin. What figures of decimation by plague, pestilence or famine, by war, earthquake or flood, have anything like the impressiveness of this slaughter of the innocents? This is the real race suicide. Of what use is it to bring more children into being only to let them perish? The darker hues of the picture are considerably toned down in the figures of infant mortality in New York city, which promise to be lower for the year 1912 than ever before. Yet in five years 80,800 children less than a year old have died in this community, where the purest charitable and free medical facilities are provided for all.

Ex-Senator Chandler of New Hampshire is a sane, sensible, Taft-man and his attitude toward the Roosevelt republicans is so much in contrast to the many ride-or-ruin republicans in high places about here that it is well worth citing. Mr. Chandler says there are plenty of Taft men who, before the convention, gave out that they would bolt Roosevelt if nominated even if that nomination was fairly brought about, and if therefore ill behooves them to berate Roosevelt men who are for the colonel on principle. He says that he does not know a Roosevelt republican who is influenced by a bad motive. Mr. Chandler wants them to support the republican state ticket and can see no reason why they shouldn't, and believes they will if the fool killers will stop the talk of sending them off committees and out of the party.—Malden News.

The Baltimore American strikes the keynote by saying, "Go slow before deserting your party." This would seem to be timely advice to some of the deluded followers of the Bull Moose.

PARCELS POST

NEW STAMPS

Department Will Issue Series of Twelve Soon.

A series of twelve postage stamps, unique in size and novel in design, is to be provided by order of Postmaster General Hitchcock for exclusive use on parcels post packages when the law goes into effect January 1.

Under the law recently enacted by Congress, ordinary stamps cannot be used.

The special parcels post stamps will be larger than the ordinary, and distinctive in color. The first series will illustrate modern methods of transporting mail, one stamp showing the mail car on a railway train; another an ocean mail steamer; a third an automobile now used in the postal service; and a fourth the dispatch of mail by aeroplane.

The second series will show at work in their several environments the four great classes of postal employees—postoffice clerks, railway mail clerks, city letter carriers and rural delivery carriers. The third series will represent four industrial scenes, showing the principal sources of the products that probably will be transported extensively by parcels post. The 60,000 post offices will be supplied with them before the law becomes effective.

A SOLDIER POEM.

The following entitled "The Hike" from private Bainbridge of Company D, Washington barracks cannot help make a hit with the army soldier. My throat is hot and dusty like a bloomin' hole of hay; My feet are sore and blistered and my heels are worn away. I am sticky, hot and dirty and my patience worn to bits. Yet the officers all wonder why the private up and quits.

It was "route step, march," With dust upon your clothes; Don't mind the perspiration. That's a drippin' down your nose. You're a howling thing of beauty When you hit the bloomin' pile And we all of us delight When we go upon a hike.

My shoulder's lame and twisted from packin' up my knag; My knees are tired and tremble and I'm wobbling like a jag. My face is cracked and sunburned and my thinker even hurts. Yet the officers all wonder why the "bleed" man deserts.

It was "full step, march," With your haversacks and roll. Don't mind the heavy cartridge belt. That's tearin' out your soul. You're a chirpin', clankin' jack-ass. Like a pack train on a strike. Oh, it's lovely in the army Since we all began to hike.

"We don't mind a bit of marchin' when we see the reason why. But for plain old-fashioned nonsense—this here blkin' takes the pie. It is simply just disgustin' and don't train a man a bit. Yet the officers all wonder when a private "hits the grit."

It was "squad right, march." Don't mind the dust or heat. You're waitin' most impatient Till the bugle sounds retreat. You're a ravin' ravin' idiot. Like a devil on a hike. And army life's delightful. Now that we have got to hike.

If you want to train a sprinter once a year is not the way; Start out easy then increase and add a little bit each day. Then he's hard and used to goin, and blkin' never hurts. Yet the officers all wonder why the "listed man deserts.

It was "hall, dress up"; I was glad, I must confess; From my leggin to my helmet I was just a drippin' mess. Just a wiggy, wobbly hombra, Just a poor, deserted type. Oh, for fine and dandy trainin'. There's nothin' like the hike.

ROYAL BAKING POWDER

Adds Healthful Qualities to the Food

Prof. Prescott, of the University of Michigan, explains why Royal Baking Powder adds healthful qualities to the food.

Testifying before the Pure Food Committee of Congress, the Professor stated that fruit acids were excellent articles of food and that of these cream of tartar, the acid of grapes, held rank with the highest both in itself and its effect in the process of leavening and baking. He regarded the results from cream of tartar baking powder as favorable to health. Scientists and hygienists are in accord with this opinion.

Royal is the only Baking Powder made from Royal Grape Cream of Tartar.

AN OFFICER KILLED AND MANY INJURED

Steam Chest on Torpedo Destroyer Walke Exploded--Chief Engineer Morrison Killed and Others Hurt.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 1.—Lieut. Donald P. Morrison was killed and eight men injured today by the explosion of the steam chest on the torpedo destroyer Walke.

The seriously injured were Lieut. Robert L. Montgomery of the destroyer Fanning, who was acting as umpire, and J. B. Crawford, gunner's mate, of the destroyer Patterson, also an umpire, and the following members of the Walke's crew:

J. W. Rumps, machinist mate, first class.

H. L. Wilder, machinist mate, first class.

D. S. Kelly, chief machinist mate.

J. Delany, first-class fireman.

W. E. Kraus, oiler.

F. B. Conway, oiler.

Oliver H. Hardgrove, second class fireman.

The Walke was off Brentons Reef Lightship and was about to start on her second quarterly speed trial in company with several other destroyers of the third group, when the forward end of the port turbine, together with the steam chest, was blown off.

Lieut. Morrison, the chief engineer officer on board, was instantly killed, while the others were badly scalded.

Injured Transferred to the Solace.

Signals were at once hoisted for assistance and a wireless dispatch was sent to Rear Admiral Osterhaus on board his flagship Connecticut, at anchor off Jamestown.

The destroyers Perkins, Sterett and Mayrant were not far off, and immediately ran back to the Walke. A heavy southerly gale was blowing, but efforts were made to send a line on board the Walke, when it was discovered that her starboard engine was in commission.

The Walke steamed slowly back into the harbor and ran alongside the hospital ship Solace, on board of which had assembled the greater part of the medical staff of the fleet.

The injured were transferred as speedily as possible and the Walke sent to the torpedo station for repairs.

Lieut. Morrison was a native of Missouri and entered the service Aug. 29, 1902.

The Walke was built by the Fore River Shipbuilding Company at Quincy and is of 742 tons displacement, with an indicated horsepower of 12,000. She was launched Nov. 3, 1910. She was named for Admiral Henry Walke, by whose granddaughter, Miss Mildred Walke Walter, the vessel was christened.

The Walke is a sister vessel of the destroyers Perkins and Sterett. Her complete crew is 89 men.

At her trials, held in March and April of 1911, the Walke surprised everybody by making much better time than her contract had called for. It was found, however, that she rolled badly in a heavy sea. Power for her twin screws was supplied by two reversible turbines with an indicated brake horsepower of 12,000. At one of her trials she developed 23,218 knots.

A few minutes after Admiral Osterhaus was informed the signal "All medical officers report aboard hospital ship Solace" was flashed, hoisted from the flagship Connecticut. Soon afterward the Walke was alongside the hospital ship. Not long after the commander-in-chief, Rear Admiral Osterhaus, boarded the hospital ship with members of his staff and Capt. Eberle, visiting the injured and cheering them, speaking kindly words individually.

The serious accident, the first in the destroyer flotilla, has cast gloom over the entire fleet. An investigation has been ordered and the Navy Department has been notified.

Use less Butter— More Cottolene

No wonder butter is so high. Particular women who are loath to use lard or cooking butter in their cakes and fine pastry, use table butter. With butter at the price you have to pay for it, that's downright extravagance. Cottolene is just as good as butter for pastry; for frying, it is better. And Cottolene costs no more than lard. Moreover, Cottolene is richer, and two-thirds of a pound of it will go as far as a pound of butter or lard.

And lard and Cottolene are not to be mentioned in the same breath, for Cottolene is a vegetable product, healthful, always safe—makes digestible, rich, but never greasy food.

THE N. K. FAIRBANK COMPANY

See so to conduct its investigation as to further Mr. Whitman's political ambitions.

Mr. Guthrie apparently based his words on a criticism of the work of the Alderman Committee attributed to Mr. Whitman in the evening newspapers of last Saturday. Mr. Whitman repudiated this interview the same afternoon, declaring that he had been misquoted, and this was called to Mr. Guthrie's attention yesterday. Mr. Guthrie insisted that he had received no explanation of the words attributed to Mr. Whitman, and so should continue on the course that he had laid down for himself. He said that while an action for libel was a weak answer to such charges as were attributed to Mr. Whitman, still it was the best he could do, and he should commence suit in a day or so for $50,000.

With his statement Mr. Guthrie made announcement of his withdrawal from Mr. Buckner's forces at the inquiry. He explained that no criticism of the investigation or the work of the committee had led him to do this, but the fact that illness in the family of his law partner compelled him to abandon all work for the time being so that the full responsibility of the office fell on Mr. Guthrie's shoulders. In this event Mr. Guthrie said that he felt he had no right to abandon his own work or the sake of continuing as assistant to Mr. Buckner.

Alderman Curran said last night that the statement of Assistant Counsel Guthrie of the aldermanic committee, attacking District Attorney Whitman, was not official in any respect, and did not represent the views of himself, Emory D. Buckner, or the other members of the committee. Mr. Buckner and Mr. Curran, after Guthrie's statement had been published, talked to most of the aldermen on the committee, and then telephoned to District Attorney Whitman disavowing responsibility for Guthrie's utterances.

ALL QUIET AT LAWRENCE

LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 1.—The strike 24 hours, declared by the Industrial Workers of the World employed in the textile mills of this city as a protest against the imprisonment of Kitter and Gloyanatti, ended today when 12,000 operatives who remained away from the mills yesterday returned to work.

As a rule the return of the workers has not accompanied by disorder, although a few disturbances of a minor nature were reported and one arrest was made. A crowd collected outside the gates of the Arlington mill and he police used their clubs freely in clearing the street. Not all of the returning operatives were given work. Many of the mills some of the employees were turned away because there was nothing for their department to do. Others were discharged because they were alleged to have destroyed or injured mill property during the strike. At the Everett mill a number of boys were refused work because it was claimed, they had intimidated a watchman at the mill.

Many members of the Industrial Workers employed in the Wood mill of the American Woolen company, left their machines when they learned that one of their number had been dismissed employment. At 8.30 a. m. it was said that 2000 operatives were leaving, either having been refused work or having left the mills because some of the comrades had not been taken back.

More than an hour before the time for starting the machinery the vanguard of the operatives passed out of the tenement districts towards the factories. By 6 o'clock thousands were traversing the business section of the city, and Essex street, the scene of yesterday's rioting, was quiet.

Many bandaged heads and hands in the crowd bore witness to the part taken by their possessors in the disturbances of the past few days.

The entire police force of the city patroled the mill district. Deputy Chief Neal of the Massachusetts district police kept his 25 officers on duty. The deputy had planned to send his men out of the city, but the discharge of operatives at some of the mills caused him to change his plans.

"LITTLE BOY BLUE"

Henry W. Savage's Big Musical Success Comes to the Majestic Theatre, Boston, Next Week.

Boston will have the pleasure of his first big engagement after the effective six months' run in New York last season of the joyous operetta, "Little Boy Blue." Henry W. Savage will offer the original production and

As is customary with Mr. Savage, a palatable American text was prepared by A. E. Thomas and Edward Paulton.

Guthrie, the famous artist contemporaneous with the most romantic periods of England and Scotland, brought from his brush among other masterpieces one called "Boy Blue," and it is about this painting that the story is written. A replica of the portrait is exhibited in the second act and the "Little Boy Blue" of the story follows it in dress and general appearance. The appealing story of the little wandering prince of the Scots has never been more attractively told.

In selecting the cast for "Little Boy Blue" Mr. Savage again demonstrated his ability in fitting the artist to the part. Gertrude Bryan, a then obscure little miss, walked into fame in the title role on the opening night at the Lyric Theatre and will play the part here. The principal comedy role will go in the hands of Otis Harlan. Just as Mr. Savage fitted Jess Dandy so well in "The Prince of Pilsen," he gave the infatigable Harlan the only good opportunity he has ever had since he made the whole country roar in the character of Goodrich Mud in Hoyt's "A Black Sheep." But Harlan is Dupont, the detective, in "Little Boy Blue" has once more with the aid of Mr. Savage's sagacity knocked to smithereens the theatrical axiom that once a man has made a big impression in a character he never can get away from it.

Then Mr. Savage will present here the original New York production is a foregone conclusion since he promises it. Maude Odell and the other members of the Lyric Theatre production will also be present. To the public Mr. Savage is "a reliable man," for he has always kept the faith of his promises. There will be an enlarged orchestra worthy of the beautiful score. The plaintive melodies of the Scottish Highlands have found a musical resting place as soft as the down of the thistle itself.

WEDDING BELLS
THIS MORNING

Miss Mary Murphy Becomes the Bride of Thomas Connors

A very pretty October wedding was solemnized this morning at the Church of the Immaculate Conception when Miss Mary Murphy became the bride of Thomas Connors, a well known employee of the Portsmouth Brewing Company. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edward J. Walsh, P. R., in the presence of a large gathering of relatives and friends.

The bride wore a very pretty gown of white satin. She was attended by her sister, Miss Bridget Murphy, as bridesmaid, who was dressed in white silk. The best man was Maurice Connors, brother of the groom.

Following the church service a reception was held at the new residence which the couple will occupy on Holmes court.

The wedding gifts were decidedly numerous and consisted of silver, cut glass, furniture and choice linen.

Mr. and Mrs. Connors are popular with a wide circle of young friends who join in extending best wishes for a long and happy wedded life.

THEN HE WOKE UP.
Driver Thinks It's Monday Morning and Starts Work Sunday Night.

A well known driver of one of the local business houses don't care how early he starts to work or whether it's on Sunday or a work day. On Sunday he decided to enjoy a day's sleep which naturally refreshed him, but on the other hand got him somewhat mixed. Arousing from his slumber shortly after five o'clock in the afternoon he thought that it was Monday morning and hurrying to the stables, he quickly harnessed up his horses and was off to the Boston and Maine Freight yard for some goods. Here is where he woke up. Not a soul could be seen and the freight house was closed. The evening church bells brought him out of it, but he could not get back to the stables without being seen.

Now who was it that saw him and let loose the story? That's what he would like to know. His friends at the Hammond Beef Company may put him wise.

Oscar L. Johnson, the well known Water street barber, is today quietly observing another anniversary of his birth.
